Then the class proceeded toward making students understand the importance of communications. There were activities in which students were asked to talk about their greatest achievement, another activity focused on importance on listening and having a productive conversation. Students were asked to talk about the values they think they have cultivated till now and also about a few things which make them feel happy and successful in life. The objective was to make students understand their worth and every individual on this planet is unique and important. It was a simple yet a very effective session.

Lastly, Principal Madam took the class about the importance of the grit and passion and how one can combine it and use it to achieve respective goals and not to quit in between in journey.
